2 If an adjective has two or more syllables, we add the word in front to create the comparative form.

3 We use to say that someone or something has an inferior quality, size or characteristic

5 When you refer to the two people/things you are comparing, you need to use

7 For irregular one-syllable adjectives in English, ending in a consonant and preceded by a vowel, you must double the final consonant as fat

8 When the adjective ends in -y, you must replace it with -i and add -er

1 In long adjectives, the comparative is formed with the term more before the adjective as beautiful

4 To form the comparative, just add -er to the end of the adjective as big

6 Although most adjectives fall within the category of regular, however there are some that are irregular and that are very commonly used as good

9 When the adjective ends in -y, you must replace it with -i and add
