Knowing two languages makes it easier to travel to foreign countries, communicate with people from other cultures, and conduct international business. Even if you do not learn to speak another language fluently, studying a language is a useful academic exercise because it requires concentration and logical thinking.

Some people choose to learn Latin, which is a dead language.

Latin has not been spoken for over a thousand years. Nevertheless, schools in many different countries offer courses in Latin. Some argue that Latin help English speakers build their vocabulary, since many English words are derived from Latin. Latin is also the basis for all of the modern Romance languages. If you already know Latin, learning Italian and Spanish will be easier to learn. Nonetheless, if you choose to study a language that is not spoken anymore, many of the practical advantages of learning a second language are erased. This means you should think carefully about which language you choose to learn.

- d the basis for other languages

Someone who knows Latin will likely be able to

- I. think logically
- II. learn Spanish easier
- III. communicate with foreigners

- a I only
- b I and II only
- c II and III only
- d I, II, and III

5. According to the author, Latin can be helpful for English speakers because it is

- a the basis for all of the modern Romance languages
- b a way to conduct international business
- c taught in schools in many different countries
- d a way to help build their vocabulary

6. As used in paragraph 2, something that is derived must

- a come before something else
- b come from something else
- c be the same as something else
- d replace something else

7. The author writes, "If you already know Latin, languages like Italian and Spanish will be easier to learn." Assess this argument. Is this a strong enough reason to learn Latin instead of simply learning Spanish first? Why or why not?

No, it is not a solid enough reason to learn Latin, because although Spanish is derived from Latin, they are different languages
